- (a) The Smith Johannes Brahms
(b) Indian Cradle Song H. Alexander Mathews

THE MORNING CHORAL CLUB

- (a) My lover I hear,
His hammer down-crashing,
And ringing and clashing,
Its clangor rebounding
Like deep chimes resounding,
Makes vibrant the air.

There by his black forge
My lover doth tower,
I pass, and a shower
Of red flames up-soaring,
The big bellows roaring
Around him regorge.

—Uhland.

(b)

From groves of spice,
O'er fields of rice,
Athwart the lotus stream,
I bring for you,
Aglint with dew,
A little, lovely dream.

Sweet, shut your eyes,
The wild fire flies—
Dance through the fairy neem
From the poppy bole
For you I stole
A little, lovely dream.

Ah! Dear eyes, good night,
In golden light
The stars around you gleam;
On you I press,
With soft caress,
A little, lovely dream.

—Sarojini Naidu.

(b) Who'll Buy My Lavender? Edward German
(c) Haste Thee, Nymph Theodore S. Holland

THE MORNING CHORAL CLUB

(Unaccompanied)

(a) The evening wind that on its wing
The sweetness of the hawthorn bore,
When in the spring our loves we told,
Now sighs along the blacken'd wold,
And woos the waters green and cold,
That moan upon the shore.

O'er head the boughs of leaves are reft,
And on the damp, bleak path I tread;
Low lies the beauty of the year,
And not one songster can I hear
To charm away the wilful tear,
For love's betrayal shed.

The spring will smile o'er earth again,
And bid the fragrant blossoms blow;
From this decay sweet flow'rs shall rise
When leaden hues have left the skies,
The heart wherein love stifled lies,
The joy shall never know!

—Urquehart.

(b)

Ladies fair, I bring to you
Lavender with spikes of blue;
Sweeter plant was never found
Growing on our English ground.

Who'll buy my Lavender?
Lavender shall turn your rooms
Into gardens full of blooms;
You shall almost hear the bees
Humming drowsy melodies.

Who'll buy? Who'll buy? Who'll buy?
Who'll buy my Lavender,
My sweet Lavender?
Lavender shall turn your rooms
Into gardens full of blooms.

Velvet gowns and dainty fur
Should be laid in Lavender,
For its sweetness drives away
Fretting moths of silver gray.
Who'll buy my Lavender?

Ladies fair, I pray that ye
Like the Lavender fair may be,
And your fame, when you are gone,
Still in sweetness linger on.
Who'll buy? Who'll buy? Who'll buy?

—Caryl Battersby.

(c)

Haste thee, nymph, and bring with thee
Jest and youthful jollity,
And cranks, and wanton wiles,
And becks, and wreaths and smiles,
Such as hang on Hebe's cheek,
And love to live in dimple sleek;
Sport that wrinkled care derides
And laughter holding both his sides,
Tra lal lal laa! both his sides.
Come and trip it as you go,
On the light fantastic toe;
In thy right hand lead with thee
The mountain nymph, sweet liberty,
The mountain nymph, sweet liberty.

—“L'Allegro”—John Milton.

Cantata—The Highwayman

and

MR. ALLAN

The wind was a torrent of darkness among the gusty trees,
The moon was a ghostly galleon tossed upon cloudy seas,
The road was a ribbon of moonlight over the purple moor
    And the highwayman came riding—
    Riding—riding—
The highwayman came riding, up to the old inn door.

He'd a French cocked hat on his forehead, a bunch of lace at his chin,
A coat of claret velvet, and breeches of brown doe-skin;
They fitted with never a wrinkle: his boots were up to his thigh!
    And he rode with a jeweled twinkle,
    His pistol butts a-twinkle,
His rapier hilt a-twinkle, under the jeweled sky.

Over the cobbles he clattered and clashed in the dark inn-yard,
And he tapped with his whip on the shutters, but all was locked and barred;
He whistled a tune to the window, and who should be waiting there
    But the landlord's black-eyed daughter,
    Bess, the landlord's daughter,
Plaiting a dark red love-knot into her long black hair.

(Baritone Solo)

“One kiss, my bonny sweetheart, I’m after a prize tonight,
But I shall be back with the yellow gold before the morning light;
Yet if they press me sharply, and harry me through the day,
Then look for me by moonlight,
Watch for me by moonlight,
I’ll come to thee by moonlight, though hell should bar the way.”

(Baritone Solo and Chorus)

He rose upright in the stirrups; he scarce could reach her hand,
But she loosened her hair in the casement! His face burnt like a brand
As the black cascade of perfume came tumbling over his breast;
And he kissed its waves in the moonlight,
(Oh, sweet black waves in the moonlight!)
Then he tugged at his rein in the moonlight, and galloped away to the West.

(Chorus)

He did not come in the dawning; he did not come at noon;
But out of the tawny sunset, before the rise o’ the moon,
When the road was a gypsy’s ribbon, looping the purple moor,
A red-coat troop came marching—
Marching—marching—
King George’s men came marching, up to the old inn door.

They said no word to the landlord, they drank his ale instead,
But they gagged his daughter and bound her to the foot of her narrow bed;
Two of them knelt at her casement, with muskets at their side,
There was death at every window;
And hell at one dark window;
For Bess could see, through her casement, the road that he would ride.

They had tied her up at attention, with many a sniggering jest;
They had bound a musket beside her, with the barrel beneath her breast!
“Now keep good watch!” and they kissed her. She heard the dead man say—
Look for me by moonlight;
Watch for me by moonlight;
I’ll come to thee by moonlight, though hell should bar the way!

She twisted her hands behind her; but all the knots held good!
She writhed her hands till her fingers were wet with sweat or blood!

They stretched and strained in the darkness, and the hours
crawled by like years,

Till now, on the stroke of midnight,

Cold, on the stroke of midnight,

The tip of one finger touched it! The trigger at last was hers!

Trot-trot! Had they heard it? The horse hoofs ringing clear;
Trot-trot, in the distance? Were they deaf that they did not hear?

Down the ribbon of moonlight, over the brow of the hill,

The highwayman came riding,

Riding, riding!

The red-coats looked to their priming! She stood up, straight and still!

Trot-trot, in the frosty silence! Trot-trot in the echoing night!

Nearer he came and nearer! Her face was like a light!

Her eyes grew wide for a moment; she drew one last deep breath,

Then her fingers moved in the moonlight,

Her musket shattered the moonlight,

Shattered her breast in the moonlight and warned him—with her death.

(Baritone Solo)

He turned; he spurred to Westward; he did not know who stood Bowed, with her head o'er the musket, drenched with her own red blood!

Not till dawn he heard it, and slowly blanched to hear

How Bess, the landlord's daughter,

The landlord's black-eyed daughter,

Had watched for her love in the moonlight, and died in the darkness there.

Back, he spurred like a madman, shrieking a curse to the sky,
With the white road smoking behind him, and his rapier brand-ished high!

Blood-red were his spurs in the golden noon; wine-red was his velvet coat;

When they shot him down on the highway,

Down like a dog on the highway,

And he lay in his blood on the highway—(with the bunch of lace at his throat).

And still of a winter's night, they say,
When the wind is in the trees,
When the moon is a ghostly galleon
Toss'd upon cloudy seas—
When the road is a ribbon of moonlight
Over the purple moor,
A highwayman, a highwayman comes riding,
Up to the old inn door—
Over the cobbles he clatters
And clangs in the dark inn-yard,
And he taps with his whip on the shutters,
But all is locked and barr'd;
He whistles a tune to the window,
And who should be waiting there
But the landlord's black-eyed daughter
Bess, the landlord's daughter,
Plaiting a dark red love-knot
Into her long black hair.
