Ode to March - - - - - C. W. Stebbins

THE APOLLO CLUB

I

ODE TO MARCH.

I.

Sir March, you're a blustering fellow,
With riotous, rollicking ways!
Why can't you be genial and mellow
And give us a few pleasant days?
Your winds are a mounted battalion,
With sabres of icicles keen!
And it's ho! for a charge from the Northland,
And a battle with forces unseen!

II.

You rattle (rattle them) our doors and our windows
And challenge us all to come out,
And then when we venture to brave you,
You buffet and beat us about, about,
And you smile with a glimmer of sunshine
Then pelt us with snow and with sleet,
Till we shrink from your boist'rous caresses.
And hastily, hastily, hastily, beat a retreat.

III.

And it's ho! for a romp and a frolic,
And it's ho! for a rout and a roar,
But we know that for all your bluster
You are friendly and true to the core.
And tho' April is tearful and tender, and May is charming
and arch,
By the bloodstone that glows in your helmet,
We pledge you allegiance, Sir March!

Three Fishers

- - - -

Robert Goldbeck

THREE FISHERS.

Three fishers went sailing out into the west,
Out into the west as the sun went down;
Each thought on the woman who lov'd him the best,
And the children stood watching (watch) them out of the town.

For men must work and women must weep,
For men must work and women must weep,
Tho' there's little to earn and many to keep,
And the harbor bar be moaning, moaning, moaning.

Three wives sat up in the light-house tower,
the light-house tower,
And they trimm'd the lamps as the sun went down,
as the sun went down.

They look'd at the squall, and they look'd at the shower,
And the night rack came rolling up, ragged and brown;
But men must work and women must weep,
must weep, must weep,

Tho' the storms be sudden, the waters deep,
And the harbor bar be moaning, moaning, moaning.

Three corpses lay out on the shining sands,
In the morning gleam as the tide went down;
And the women are weeping and wringing their hands,
For those who will never (ne'er) come back to the town;
For men must work and women must weep,
For men must work and women must weep,
And the sooner it's over the sooner to sleep,
And good bye to the bar and its moaning, moaning, moaning.

THE APOLLO CLUB

SERENADE.

I.

Now softly and low, that no one may know!
As with fairy tread so lightly,
Do we here assemble sprightly,
When her window's open thrown
We at once our song intone
Tra la la la la la la, Tra la la!
Love do thou hear!

II.

Then softly and low the clock twelve doth show!
Where the clinging vines are creeping
At her window she is peeping;
With her hand and eyes so bright,
She is bidding us good night,
Tra la la la la la la, Tra la la!
Sweet be her dreams!

III.

Now softly and low, that no one may know!
As with fairy tread so lightly,
Do ye steal away now sprightly,
She doth lie in sweet repose,
Singers, too, your eyelids close!
Tra la la la la la la, Tra la la!
Good night to all!

SHEPHERD'S SUNDAY SONG.

I.

Oh day of all most dear! Oh day of all most dear!
Alone I stand upon the plain,
While distant chimes, in dulcet strain,
Fall sweetly, sweetly, on mine ear.

II.

In holy calm I bend and mark the soft ethereal sound
Of angels' wings that hover 'round
And with my prayers ascend.
The skies so bright, so clear; expanding wide their fields of gold;
To me the light of Heav'n unfold,
Oh day of all most dear!
