Offertory Anthem: "Three Women Went Forth".....Matthews

Three women went forth at the breaking of day, sweet ointment and spices on Jesus to lay; sad were their hearts as they went through the gloom, and thought of their Lord lying dead in the tomb.

There soldiers kept watch, keeping guard night and day, for fear that the Christ should be stolen away; but vain were the vigil and craft of His foes, triumphant o'er death and the grave—He arose.

Three women drew nigh to the grave at the dawn, the stone was rolled back and their Saviour was gone; and two shining angels in garments so white, with words of great joy put their sorrows to flight.

"All hail, blessed women! Why weep for the dead? Your Lord is not here. He is risen as He said; now come see the place where the Lord lately lay, then haste, spread the news, He is risen today."
